Disaster Relief Updates

Indonesia Tsunami & Earthquake, 2006

This past summer a tsunami and an earthquake struck Indonesia. For the tsunami disaster, Hidaya Foundation distributed 500 blankets and 1,000 tents. For earthquake relief, Hidaya Foundation helped over 1,000 injured at hospitals and over 3,000 displaced families by providing tents.

Pakistan Earthquake, 2005

Hidaya Foundation continues to support Pakistan earthquake victims. In July 2006, Hidaya Foundation moved its office and warehouses to Abbottabad from Islamabad to be close to people in need and reduce overhead. This Ramadan, Hidaya Foundation will be distributing dry rations to needy families in addition to ongoing distribution of other supplies such as tents, blankets, jackets, sleeping bags, etc. to meet the challenges of winter. A large number of people this year will still be without homes and hence a tremendous amount of work is still required to support such people. ◆

Education for the Next Generation

Sponsor A Student

During 2006, Hidaya Foundation supported over 1,500 students in the form of monthly stipends and/or fees. In 2007, Hidaya Foundation has planned to expand the project and support, Insha'Allah, a minimum of 5,000 children for their educational needs. ◆

No Orphan without Education

Hidaya Foundation is putting extra effort to identify orphans and support them for not only their survival, but to make sure such children have opportunity to acquire education. ◆

Feed the Hungry

One Million Meals Project

Feed the world's poorest of the poor by providing them with food rations. Hidaya Foundation has been running this project for the last four years. Each meal costs only 25 cents. ◆

Disaster Preparedness Team

Disaster could strike at any moment!

Since Dec. 2004 Tsunami, the world has seen major disasters taking place again and again worldwide. Should a disaster strike where we live:

- How would we, and our families survive in the difficult circumstances?
- Family and neighbors may be critically injured. Do we know how we will help them?
- There may not be any running water, electricity or gas for several days. How will we find water, cook food and stay warm?

- There might not be enough food for your family. Where will you find food when everyone else is in a similar situation?
- Your home may be on fire. What would you do to stop it?
- Where will you go for the call of nature if you live in crowded cities?

To meet this challenge, in 2005, Hidaya Foundation started a project to help train communities under its "Disaster Preparedness Team" project. Hidaya Foundation's team members have already completed their training; we are now announcing the opportunity for others to sign-up for training in Disaster Preparedness. Over time, Hidaya Foundation plans to offer this training at the national level and eventually in other countries around the world.

To sign-up in disaster preparedness training and information on this project or to make your own 72-hour emergency preparedness kit please visit www.hidaya.org.

How we Distribute Zakat

Widows, orphans, elderly and the poorest of the poor benefit in the form of dry ration, clothing, and other basic human needs.

Hidaya Foundation collects and distributes Zakat donations per strict Shariah guidelines (according to Chapter 9: Verse 60 in the Holy Quran), and as instructed by donors. Zakat funds are distributed directly by Hidaya Foundation or transferred to sister and reliable partner organizations in South Asia and West Africa to support orphans, widows, poor elderly, and families in extreme poverty and for marriage support for poor girls. Zakat funds are also used to support Zakat-deserving students for their educational needs and less fortunate ones for their health care needs. ♦

Container Shipments

Donate new & used items to help the poor

To support earthquake victims in Pakistan, Hidaya Foundation shipped 36 forty-foot ocean freight containers [approx. 540 tons of supplies] during 2005. Most of the containers contained winter items, including tents, jackets, sleeping bags, etc. This year, Hidaya Foundation has already sent 10 forty-foot containers [approx. 150 tons of supplies].

During September and October 2006, Hidaya Foundation intends to ship three more containers. If you would like to donate, please visit www.hidaya.org for more information. Donations are accepted every Saturday and Sunday from 12:00 – 4:00 pm at the donation collection center in Milpitas, CA. If you reside out of the San Francisco Bay Area, you can mail your donations to Hidaya Foundation, 1765 Scott Blvd., Suite # 115, Santa Clara, CA 95056. If you would like to ship a container from your community please contact us. ♦

The Story of Hidaya Foundation

by Abiya Ahmed

In today's modern society, where people are trapped in a world of commercialism and consumerism, an organization that exists purely to serve humanity comes across as a breath of fresh air. Since 1999, Hidaya Foundation has been providing that air through numerous charitable projects conducted in economically depressed areas of Pakistan, India, Bangladesh, Sri Lanka, Indonesia, several countries in West Africa and North America.

Hidaya Foundation was founded by Waseem Baloch in Santa Clara, California. An engineer by profession, Baloch started writing the bylaws of the organization in 1990, and after certain circumstantial delays, registered it in the US and Pakistan in 1999. However, he had conceived of such an idea as early as 1972, when, as a teenager riding with his uncle on the streets of Karachi, he saw several people driven out of their homes due to monsoon rains.

"All the huts and shanty towns were destroyed, and I was in the car looking at other children sitting on the street with a few pots and pans, and they had lost everything," he recalled, "and for several miles, I rode with my uncle and witnessed the destruction. It impacted me so much that I wasn't able to sleep that night. I remember I found myself crying, and making dua to Allah (SWT) to use me to serve His creation."

The Programs

According to Baloch, Hidaya Foundation's priority is education, especially women's education. "But we realized that when people don't even have one proper meal, how can they worry about education? Hence we spend time toward social welfare and health care as well."

Consequently, Hidaya Foundation's programs are of three types: educational and vocational, social welfare and disaster relief, and health care. Sub-projects within each category include sponsoring students and schools in deprived regions, distributing Zakat to widows, orphans and elderly, supporting marriages of destitute girls, the One Million Meals project, being

Donor Safety

Hidaya Foundation has taken effective steps to keep its donors and volunteers safe from today's unpredictable environment.

- Controlled Execution: Hidaya Foundation executes most of its projects by utilizing its own volunteers and employees .
- Anti-Terrorism Database: if a need arises to work with a partner organization, that organization and its board of directors are qualified by checking against the anti-terrorism databases maintained by the United Nations, US Dept. of Treasury and European Union.
- US Dept. of Treasury Anti-Terrorist Financing Guidelines: Hidaya Foundation follows these guidelines while executing projects in addition to the laws of the country of project.

on location as soon as disaster strikes, and providing medical support for underprivileged patients and hospitals. Additionally, Hidayah Foundation also carries out a Container Shipment Project, which involves collecting books, computers, medical supplies, clothes, shoes, toys, and other household items to ship to impoverished areas. "In the 11 weeks after the earthquake in Pakistan, Hidayah Foundation sent 24 forty-foot containers full of blankets, winter clothing and tents to Pakistan, collected from throughout the USA," Baloch said.

Does he think the community is doing enough to serve charitable causes? Without a moment's hesitation, Baloch replied, "When Muslims in the past paid their Zakat, there were no poor left. Looking at the worldwide situation now, I feel that all Muslims are not paying their Zakat. So no I don't think the community is doing enough."

He believes awareness plays a key role in this regard, noting that instead of just playing on people's emotions, Hidayah Foundation attempts to educate people through its flyers (how to calculate Zakat, why one should pay Zakat and Sadaqah, etc.). Before Ramadan, Hidayah Foundation will make available on its website a free comprehensive booklet on calculating Zakat, compiled from several sources, which will address modern financial situations that a Muslim faces (401K plans, stocks, stock options, etc.) when calculating Zakat.

The Future

The organization has come a long way since Baloch started working on it from a desk at his home in 1997. The year Hidayah Foundation completed its registration, it raised $111,626. Baloch noted that in 2005, "Hidayah Foundation crossed $4.4 million, so Allah has placed tremendous barakah [blessings] in our work and helped us bring the organization to this level in such a short period of time."

In late 2002, Baloch gave up his engineering profession to work full-time for Hidayah Foundation himself. Very matter-of-factly he noted, "I thought if I could give my energy and knowledge to corporate America, why not to Hidayah and hence to those who are more deserving of it?" As a result, funds increased tenfold.

According to Hidayah Foundation's Treasurer Mohamed Shafik, who is also on the Board of Directors, "Waseem Baloch has been able to tap resources around him and get a small but a right set of people, with whom he has been able to pull off such good work." He added that the key is to be able "align resources with time and activities to make things click."

Aamir Malik, who handles IT and advertisements for Hidayah Foundation, has been volunteering for the past five years and has witnessed its growth. He attributes this to a number of factors. "Donations have increased," he said, "because Hidayah Foundation has been able to make an impact as it is quick to respond to calamities. Hidayah Foundation always backs up its work by updating the public about what its doing," he said. All of this, according to him, elicits donor confidence and assurance, which ultimately translates into a rise in donations.

What does he foresee for the future? "I see a lot of potential in the judicious growth of the organization," Malik said, adding that Hidayah Foundation is also maintaining an international presence by hiring employees overseas, which he thinks will play a vital role in its future. Shafik concurred, noting that he hopes to see Hidayah Foundation "strengthen its infrastructure, and replicate the operating processes in different parts of the world."

It is exactly in this direction that Hidayah Foundation is progressing. Currently Baloch and his team are documenting all standard operating procedures its employees worldwide. Hidayah Foundation is also developing a Disaster Preparedness Team whereby people will be trained for effective responses in case of a disaster.

"... if I could give my energy and knowledge to corporate America, why not to Hidayah and hence to those who are more deserving of it?"

Car Donation Program

You can donate your car too!

Hidaya Foundation received fifty-six cars during 2005. Eighteen usable cars were donated to community members based on their financial capabilities. During 2006 until Mid-September, Hidaya Foundation has received 21 cars. Five of these vehicles have been donated to the community. ◆

Marriage Support for Girls

Assistance to orphans and poor girls at the time of their marriage

Hidaya Foundation supports parents who are unable to get their daughters married due to lack of money. Families are provided with basic necessities such as a few dresses, pair of shoes, utensils, beddings, fan, a sewing machine and some cash for other marriage expenses. It costs approximately $100 to $300 for each marriage. ◆

Medical Support

Assistance to underprivileged patients

In underdeveloped countries, the salary of a primary school teacher, on an average, ranges from $20 to $60 per month (based on experience). The head of a household has to support a family of five to seven members as well as his parents, and sometimes siblings. This severe economic pressure results in various medical problems, but an individual suffering from such problems cannot afford to see a doctor or undergo proper treatment. Often, children at school suffering from various diseases go unattended.

Hidaya Foundation identifies such individuals and provides them access to doctors, lab tests, medicines, surgeries and follow-up visits, if required. ◆
